Tips: Going to Fenway via Riverside Park

Most fans make their way to the Fenway via the MBTA, locally known as the "T"

- Riverside has 925 “open air” parking spots and it’s roughly $6 a car to park. The cost is twice as much for an RV. You pay for parking via mobile app PayByPhone and your location is #4372
- At the vending kiosk you will purchase a Charlie card. The fee to reach Fenway from Riverside is $2.75 per person but you should load it with enough to include your return trip (at least $5.50 total for a single traveler). • The subway runs about every ten minutes
- Riverside is the last stop on the line so any train going to Boston will take you to Fenway
- You will get off at the Fenway stop and follow the signs (or the crowds). It’s about a 5 minute walk.
- When you want to return home, just retrace your steps and take the outbound train.
- It should take you 45 minutes from the time you leave Riverside Station, stop at Fenway and walk to the Park.
