

New England's luxury camping resort

Normandy Farms Family Camping Resort is a luxury camping destination that has been a family tradition since 1971. Now owned and operated by the 7th, 8th and 9th generation of the Daniels Family, Normandy Farms dates back to 1759.

Francis Daniels, formerly a soldier from the Province of Normandy, France, purchased the land for 7 pounds 18 shillings. After being captured by a Colonial privateer, he was brought to Massachusetts Bay Colony in Boston, where the young prisoner was a source of income to the privateers and was imprisoned for three months.

George Hewes, keeper of the jail, spoke French, and took a liking to his young charge. He made him aware of his brother in Wrentham, a wealthy landowner in need of hired help. With the promise of being paid wages for his services, young Francis went to Wrentham and lived with the Hewes family. Francis was indebted for the cost of his passage, and was 36 years old before it was paid off and he was able to purchase property himself.

Turning to the land, Francis carved a farm from the wilderness. The land which Francis had purchased and started to farm was to be included in an area, set aside from Wrentham and other towns, to form a new community called Foxborough.

As the years passed, the farm grew in acreage, and each succeeding generation has taken its place at Normandy. From a dairy farm to chickens, then raising sheep, family members have all worked the land first cleared from the wilderness over 250 years ago.

Today, Normandy Farms is recognized as one of the world's premier RV resorts and was nationally recognized as RV Park of the Year. Nestled in the woods on over 100 sprawling acres, Normandy Farms is practically in your own back yard, which makes it convenient to introduce your family to the camping lifestyle.
